All businesses should be able to decide for themselves whether or not it is viable for them to offer a service on any particular day. This is not something that should be controlled by the religious convictions of a section of the community. For some businesses, it is likely that there would be no demand for their services on Easter Sunday, so of course they would not open. But Easter is a time where many families and individuals like to get out and do things, or tackle projects around the home, and having suitable services available will enhance their opportunities. NOTE, I am only saying that the "business" should not be stopped from operating, not that staff should be forced to work. It should be clear in law that staff working on Easter Sunday must be optional, and appropriately compensated; failure to choose to work must be penalty free.

There is no need to have the shops open on this sacred day. Even those who are not religious can have a family time and workers may feel pressured to work.

Its a long weekend, we want to shop. Its good for tourism, and the economy. But staff should be allowed to say no to working without repercussions. They should also be paid a special Easter Sunday wage, instead of it being monday-ised.

There is no rational reason that I can see to prevent trading on Easter Sunday. Shops trade on other public holidays and it will be their choice as to whether they wish to trade given the extra staff costs on public holidays.

I have lived on the Kapiti Coast since August 1990, and have worked in Kapiti all that time. I am opposed to Easter Trading for the following reasons: 1. It is an opportunity for families to have time off together 2. We don't need to shop everyday, especially when we have the attractions of Kapiti to enjoy 3. While for me Easter holds Christian significance, I recognise for others it does not, but the pastoral value of people having the freedom to enjoy one day without trading, cannot be underestimated. 4. In summary, what's more important for the health of the Kapiti community, having a significant portion of the community working, while their families wait at home, or walk on the beach by themselves, or face yet more demands to spend, on already tight budgets, or instead, people walking on the beaches, exploring Queen Elizabeth Park, cycling and perhaps even talking? I suggest that banning Easter trading will be a healthy and productive action for Kapiti.

We are no longer a christian society,, therefore we should not be forced to celebrate one religion. People are busy and forcing a close down, creates the need to shop on day they normally would be resting. Shop owners take a massive hit in sales when forced to close down. Some shop owners use the closed dates to create mass anxiety in people to go buy products when the sale is on.

Absolutely we should be open for business on Easter Sunday. With many Kāpiti businesses dependent on tourism spending, whether it's day trippers from Wellington or those who have rented out holiday accommodation here, there are few things more frustrating than the Easter trading laws as they currently stand. If we don't allow shops to open on Easter Sunday (and we should also allow them to open on Good Friday too but that's another matter) crucial tourist spend will simply go elsewhere. As a district, we have to maximise our competitive advantage, especially where tourism is increasingly becoming vital to our district's future.

If you wish to speak to your submission we will contact you to arrange a time. Hearings will take place on Thursday 9 November 2017.

Do you want to speak to the council in support of your submission? Yes No

We are keen to get your views on whether Kapiti should enable Easter Sunday shop trading by putting a local trading policy in place.

If Council adopts an Easter Sunday shop trading policy, all shops can open for business on Easter Sunday.

If Council does not adopt a policy, only the few shops currently permitted by law to open would be able to open.

Do you want Council to adopt an Easter Sunday shop trading policy? No

If NO, why?

1 This is one of the very few days in which employees are protected from any request to work. Although in law they would not be required to work, and could opt out, that would not protect them from subtle and not-so-subtle employer pressures. Retail pressures would force most employers to be open, whether they personally wanted to or not. 2 A majority of residents identify as Christians, for whom Easter Sunday is a major holy day. The retention of this day as a special non-shopping day in this district is not much to ask. 3 Under the current policy shops are able to open on Thursday, Saturday, and Monday. The retailers argument that potential shoppers will travel and spend elsewhere on Sunday does not stack up.

give shop assistants some weekend time off. There are already too many days in the week to shop without adding Easter.

Central government has failed in its statutory duty to provide clear consistent legislation. It is not the roll of local government to determine public holidays. The law has never been consistent, some areas around NZ could open while others were prohibited from opening. The areas that were permitted to open favoured tourist areas. I believe local citizens should be the first priority and should not be disadvantaged. It should be individual businesses that decide whether to open, not councillors. Religious festivals should not have compulsory effects on secular society. The law has provisions for protecting employees who do not wish to work on Easter. It is for central government to stop any abuse of this provision by employers, not local government by imposing trading restrictions. If Council does not adopt a policy, then NO shops should be able to open to remove the inconsistency and unfair practice that currently exists.

It would take away one of the very few opportunities for many working families to share a public holiday together. There would be pressure from employers and workmates to "be a team player". Businesses in shopping malls would not have an option to remain closed on Easter Sunday. Fear of competing businesses and loss of customers could be pressures on some to open for trading.

We are in an environment of freedom of choice and therefore it is up to the individual to decide whether they wish to shop on Easter Sundays and other such days. It is completely illogical to allow some shops and so called service centres to be open for trade while others are not allowed to trade.

Yes - but only later in the day to give anyone who wishes to, to attend their own particular denomination church or religious service - then they can go out to shop if they need to. Most people mostly flock to the hardware and garden centers so they can enjoy Easter in the garden etc ?

Easter Sunday has traditionally been a family time and forms part of our NZ heritage. Young people especially will feel forced to work on this day to maintain their opportunities for employment. Also, the Christian religion has a large following in our region, and they perform a lot of community work beneficial to our society. In fact, I would go as far to say, they enhance our area. These are the type of people who will help Kapiti grow in positive ways. Out of respect for this body of people, Easter Sunday should be kept free of Easter Sunday trading.

In a declining moral world this is our one link to a time where we thought about others. Where we have an opportunity to remember if we choose a higher being who wants us to be a little kinder and living to one another. Taking this day away just encourages us to continue being selfish and self serving. Let us take this opportunity to give to others instead of getting more for ourselves.

Many people now have to work day and night, on shifts just to keep a job. We have two Sundays a year when those people do not need to be pressured to work just to keep those jobs. Allow the shops that have permission to open now do so, but keep those two precious Sundays so that families can spend quality time together.

According to the recent census, the Kapiti area is 45% Christian. This would indicate a strong respect for the observances of Easter Sunday, one of the most prominent events in the Christian calendar. Through not allowing trade on this day, as is currently the case, awareness is drawn to the important significance of Easter Sunday as a day of rest and Christian observance and an opportunity for family time. As well, many Christian retailers may want to attend church at this time but may not be able to, if there is an obligation to work. It may be that in principle they would have a choice, but there could also be a moral obligation if a willing replacement would not be found. This could easily be the case, especially if someone with particular specialist knowledge is required as a replacement, e.g. pharmaceutical knowledge, or a trusted employee. In such a case, families affected would be deprived of the opportunity to take the time off, attend church and spend valuable family time together. It would also prevent families taking a holiday together if one or more of its members was required to work in the middle of the Easter holiday.

If you wish to speak to your submission we will contact you to arrange a time. Hearings will take place on Thursday 9 November 2017.

We are keen to get your views on whether Kapiti should enable Easter Sunday shop trading by putting a local trading policy in place.

If Council adopts an Easter Sunday shop trading policy, all shops can open for business on Easter Sunday.

If Council does not adopt a policy, only the few shops currently permitted by law to open would be able to open.

Do you want Council to adopt an Easter Sunday shop trading policy? Yes

If YES, why?

Foodstuffs appreciated the opportunity to make a submission, and supports Council's proposal to allow shops in the whole of the district to be open on Easter Sunday. For its part, the majority of Foodstuffs members would welcome the opportunity to open their stores on Easter Sunday. The current restriction is inconvenient for the many family holiday-makers that travel away from home to the Kapiti Coast region for holidays and require provisions for their stay. It is also convenient for the many international tourists that visit at Easter time, and all our other customers who would simply like more days to buy groceries over the long weekend. We note that, if the Council were to introduce a policy allowing Easter Sunday trading, individual retailers within the district would be free to choose whether or not to open, retail employees would be free to choose whether or not to work (with statutory protections if they elect not to), and members of the public could choose, individually, whether they wanted to shop or not. In this sense permitting Easter Sunday trading would enable individuals to exercise personal choices. We do not wish to make oral submissions.
