We're looking at coastal hazards

Coastal hazards can affect us all.

Coastal hazards matter to Kāpiti ratepayers and all who enjoy our beautiful coast.

Coastal hazards like erosion and flooding due to sea level rise and climate change will likely intensify, bringing higher sea levels and more extreme, more frequent storms with implications for community infrastructure and our environment.

Like others across New Zealand, Kāpiti Coast District Council is prioritising and planning for this. The earlier we act, the more options we have.

Council has established the Takutai Kāpiti project and community Coastal Adaptation Panel to help you become more aware of the coastal hazards facing our district.

We've engaged consultants to talk to the community to assess the social impacts of coastal hazards. Sign up for project updates at takutaikapiti.nz and follow us on Facebook @kapiticoastdistrictcouncil.
